Description:

From Casey Marshall has it all: a successful interior-design business; a handsome, loving husband; wonderful friends; and a boatload of family money at her disposal. But just as she's contemplating starting a family, she's the victim of a hit-and-run accident that leaves her in a coma. But she's not completely out of it, so she's a witness to everything that happens in her hospital room. But is that so bad? Isn't it everyone's dream to be a fly on the wall, to hear what might be said at our funerals? Even though Casey is privy to everyone's "private" remarks and conversations as they visit, she feels trapped and helpless, especially when it becomes abundantly clear that the incident with the car was no accident. Her frustration mounts as her sister, the wayward but bighearted Drew, becomes a suspect, along with everyone close to her. While not narrated in first person, the action revolves around Casey's experiences and perceptions. Fielding makes the most of this intriguing premise without succumbing to gimmicky plot tricks. The moment that Casey solves her own attempted murder is truly riveting, and the anxiety she feels as she tries to avoid the would-be murderer's completion of his task is palpable. A heart-pounding mainstream thriller. --Mary Frances Wilkens -- This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.

Review "Fielding is a master of anticipation and knows how to create a labyrinth of tension, never providing an exit until the very last page." — The Globe and Mail --This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.
