Description:

From the Author New York Times bestselling authors and art experts Les and Sue Fox have been in business for more than 30 years. Together, they have appraised and sold more than $50 million worth of art and collectibles, including a groundbreaking auction of Rare American Gold Coins at the Plaza Hotel in 1988. The Foxes live and work in Bergen County, New Jersey. Aside from brokering fine quality 19th and 20th Century American and European art they are also avid collectors of art, and own a beautiful collection of American paintings and folk art which they enjoy on a daily basis.

In addition to art, which has always been their passion, the Foxes have built or renovated 20 luxury homes. And they created a series of commemorative United States coins for collectors which were combined with the autographs of America's 1976 Bicentennial coin artists and two U.S. Presidents, Gerald R. Ford, and George H.W. Bush. (See more on our website at EaglesOfAmerica.com.)

Les and Sue have developed a unique program for people with art for sale. Instead of the traditional options of either selling to an art dealer, or consigning to auction, the Foxes applied their creativity, knowledge and financial resources to invent a new option: Selling art to a broker (us), who would then sell it at auction as a 50-50 partner. There is a delicate balance of determining a fair price for art, and still leaving room for the likelihood of a reasonable profit for both partners (you and us.) But so far our track record has been excellent. We will be posting testimonials by some of our many satisfied customers.

About the Author New York Times bestselling authors Les and Sue Fox have been art and rare coin experts for 40 years. Their unique Art Auction Partnership program has connected them to thousands of average Americans, like Alison Beldsoe of North Carolina who found a 1930's painting by Fern Coppedge at her hot dog stand. The Foxes appraised it for her, at no charge, and six months later the painting was sold at auction for $29,800. Les and Sue live in New Jersey, which gives them close access to 20 million people, as well as the New York art and auction market. However, today anything that can happen in real life can happen on the internet. Thanks to digital photography, it is possible to appraise art online. If you need help, you can call upon the resources of the authors of The Art Hunters Handbook. The Foxes only appraise original oil paintings, not prints, reproductions or limited editions. But what they know could fill a book. In fact, here it is, just waiting for you. In addition to art, Les and Sue have written a dozen books about U.S. Silver Dollars and other collectibles. They've arranged thousands of auctions, and they've had professional relationships with two U.S. Presidents. And now, they are available to help you learn about art, and hopefully to help you make some money!
